Methods and means

Development of interactive websites (wikis) focused on the state of health of migrants and minorities and on the development of appropriate service provision for these groups. The wikis will contain information on the following topics: contextual data on migrant populations and immigration policies; research findings concerning migrants' state of health and its determinants; the health system and migrants' entitlement to healthcare; accessibility of healthcare; quality of care; 'good practices' developed to improve the matching of service provisions to the needs of migrants; policy measures undertaken to investigate and improve migrant health and resources.

Expected outcomes period

The project will:

- set up interactive websites in 16 countries, in the local language, containing a library of relevant documents and information about individuals, organisations and resources dealing with migrant and minority health. The websites will be linked to each other and to the central English-language site;
- organise meetings, at national and European level, to bring together representatives of the migrant and minority health stakeholders;
