The Mediterranean checkpoint has delivered its first report. Their approach was to select a number of applications and determine how easy it was to access and use the data needed for these applications and how fit for purpose the data were. This was a paper exercise. The next step will be to try real case studies on a number of these challenges.

AM1	SCREAM (Spatially Continuous Resource Economic Analysis Model)	air and human activities
AM2	The MARINA-Platform project	air, marine waters
AM3	Oil spill forecasting for the Lebanon accident case	air, seabed, marine waters and human activities
AM4	Storm surge and wave modelling for coastal extreme events	air, marine waters and seabed
AM5	Coastal upwelling indicators	air
AM6	Oil Spill Decision Support System; Don Pedro vessel spill on Ibiza beaches, July 2007	air, marine waters, seabed, biology/biota
MW01	EEA Climate Change Report Assessment	marine waters
MW02	Use of global datasets for hydrological predictions	fresh water
MW03	Near-real time in situ data for calibration/validation	marine waters
BB01	Assessment of Mediterranean Sea stocks	biology/biota and human activities
BB02	Alien species and stocks	biology/biota
BB03	Fishery impact on the sea floor in the MFSD	human activities
BB04	Fishery impact on sea turtles in the Mediterranean Sea	biology/biota
SBD01	RESPONSE Project - LIFE Environment program	seabed and human activities
SBD02	Assessment of Coastal Protection in Europe	seabed, human activities and marine water
SBD03	Mediterranean Beach Erosion Study Cases	seabed
SBD04	Tsunami travel time maps	seabed
SBD05	Relevant bathymetry for biological assemblages of conservation interest in the submarine canyons and numerical cumodelling	seabed marine waters, biota, human activities
